Jottings from

Jo's Notebook

Today we extend our warmest good wishes to all the workers and the management of Ferry-Morse Seed Company for coming to at least a partial agreement on their labor disputes.

We hope that the tension and the fear that has gripped this community for nearly four weeks will soon be dispelled and that we will look forward to the happiness of Thanksgiving and the joys of Christmas.

We know that this newspaper has been sharply criticized in some circles because we expressed our views in the matter of the strike. We know full well that we could have avoided ourselves some unpleasantness had we just overlooked the situation, hoping that by such an oversight the problem would have gone away.

Yes, we could have done it that way, but we didn't.

Why?

Because we feel strongly that if a newspaper submits tamely to outrages, inaccuracies, omissions and fabrications that sometimes appear in the democratic process under which we live, your world and ours will come crumbling down.

There's an old saying that goes: "Stand up for the things you believe in, or you'll fall for anything."

And this same philosophy applies to labor unions' too, for they have come a long way with the help of a free press.

We Need A Face Lifting

Not too long ago Charles Reams, a former president of the Fulton-South Fulton Chamber of Commerce, appeared before the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the organization and did some straight talking to the members assembled.

Charles, a concerned civic leader, backed up his appraisal of this community's "image" with some photographs to prove what a lot of us realize... and that is that Fulton is not a very pretty town. To be right blunt about it, we are stricken with a case of the "uglies."

However, unlike a lot of other people Charles, in his quiet and unobtrusive manner, asked the Chamber of Commerce to undertake a long range program of beautifying these twin cities with a constant clean-up, paint-up, fix-up campaign.

It's a superb idea!

Paul Durbin, executive vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce has appointed a good committee to start the plan a-rolling. On the committee to serve with Charles Reams as chairman are: Louis Weeks, Nathan Wade, Mrs. Hugh Pigue and the City Managers of both communities, Joe McCoy of Fulton and Mike Blake of South Fulton.

Needless to say this is not an easy task to tackle. There are culprits who own property like the Fulton News that is long past due for a paint job.

That's not all! When it rains, like it has for the past few days, we have more buckets and tubs around the premises than we have type lice, because our roof leaks so bad.

But we plead innocent to the charges of neglect, especially where our roof is concerned.

There just doesn't seem to be enough craftsmen here to do all the jobs around town. And that's why we think our editorial on page two about a vocational training school is so timely, and certainly so important.

Nathan Wade, a gent who has more good ideas about community development than anybody we know, has excellent ideas to give to his committee. If he is successful in consummating the job, and I know he will be, we are in store for a face-lifting that will put Helena Rubenstein to shame.

Civitan Fruit Cakes

If you haven't bought a good supply of the Claxton fruit cakes from the Civitan Club, you're sure missing a good treat.

I just know that I've been eating fruit cakes since here I've been and Claxton's are the best I've ever tasted! Hones' to goodness. They're chock full of fruits and nuts, and just plum delicious. And inexpensive too.

Union Votes To End Strike But Demands "Closed Shop"

This is the beautiful new Community Center, built under the Municipal Housing Authority, that will be the scene of the Art Guild's Exhibit Sunday afternoon from two until 5 p. m. The event will also serve as the occasion for "open house" for the new facility.

In a meeting lasting some two hours at the Holiday Inn in Fulton Wednesday afternoon, the membership of Local 254, American Federation of Grain Millers voted unanimously on the first ballot to end the 27-day old strike at the Ferry-Morse Seed Company. According to reliable information reaching the News office, Charles Jackson, a leader in the strike movement added a clause to the settlement agreement stating in effect that the company would have to dismiss the non-union members hired during the strike period in order to maintain a union (closed) shop.

While voting unanimously to end the strike, a second vote was 61 for and 33 against accepting the seed company's contract.

Bob Morgan at Ferry Morse told The News that this latter demand was not acceptable to the Company, and the matter was put back in the lap of the Union. The strike, meanwhile, continues.

As The News went to press on Thursday morning a high ranking source in labor affairs indicated that the new proposal may constitute an incident of unfair labor practices on the part of union leaders.

J. J. Mooney, a representative of the union's international organization said at noon on Wednesday that he had no comment on the terms of the new contract. He refused to substantiate the specific terms of the contract while vehemently stating that "nobody gets in to my union meetings." A news reporter asked Mr. Mooney how the information on the union vote could be secured.

Mr. Morgan revealed however that a three-year contract was negotiated with a twenty cents per hour increase for the first year; a 12 cents increase for the second year and a ten cents increase for the third year.

In addition, Mr. Morgan stated, that at the end of the contract, October 1, 1972, an additional four and one-half cents would be deposited into the retirement fund for eligible employees, bringing the total pension fund figure to twelve cents. The company is presently allocating seven and one-half cents for the employees' retirement fund.

Principal demands made by the union negotiators were for 35 cents an hour increase for a one-year contract; four and one-half cents additional to the retirement fund, and vested rights for retiring employees.

order specifically named Local 254, American Federation of Grain Millers AFL-CIO; Charles Jackson, Paul Griffith, Lillian Irene Yates, Mary Catherine Rose, Melburn Campbell, officers of the Local Union; and J. J. Mooney, Representative of American Federation of Grain Millers AFL-CIO.

The order followed mass picketing and the blocking of plant entrances and exits by Union members after the Company advertised for workers.

While the restraining order would have permitted many union members to return to work, none of them took advantage of the court order. However, some 30 non-union employees were hired in the plant to assist with the backlog of orders that had piled up in the plant as a result of the strike. This is the peak season for the seed company.

The strike was not without its incidents of threats, harassment and intimidation to the new employees and the families of those union employees who appeared to be not in sympathy with the strike.

Nail splattered driveways, threatening, anonymous phone calls at all hours of the night, and even hazardous road blocks to persons going into the plant were a part of the tactics used by the more vociferous strikers.

Open House For Center Art Show To Be Sunday Afternoon

The first major presentation to be made by the Fulton-South Fulton Arts Guild will be Sunday, November 23rd. An art exhibit consisting of original paintings from the private collections of persons in the area will be on display in the new Community Center on Carr and Valley Streets.

Those wishing to enter a painting in this exhibit are asked to call Mrs. Joe Bennett, Chairman. Those wishing to enter a painting are asked to bring their entries Sunday morning before 9:00 a. m. The paintings are to be picked up before 6:00 p. m. Sunday afternoon. Exhibit hours will be 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.

In conjunction with the art exhibit the Municipal Housing Commission will hold open house to give the people of the area an opportunity to see this fine addition to the twin cities.

Officers for the Housing Commission are: Executive Director, Richard Myatt; Chairman, James Green; Vice Chairman, Mrs. Arch Huddleston. Commissioners are Lonnie Roper and Lorene Harding. The Fulton City Mayor serves as an Ex officio member of the Commission. The Center was built under authority of the Federal Housing Act.

Mrs. Jack Allen is co-chairman of the Sunday program. Hostesses for the Art Guild's exhibit are: Mrs. Annie Laurie Cunningham, chairman; Mrs. W. L. Holland, Mrs. Louis Weeks, Mrs. Ernest Fall, Mrs. Fred Homra, Mrs. Stanley Jones and Mrs. Parks Weeks.

Rural Water District Headed For Construction In January

According to a "progress report" presented here Monday night at a meeting of the Commissioners of the Southwestern Kentucky water district, the system may begin construction of its water lines in January.

The proposed 36-mile rural water main would bring water to rural homes in Fulton and Hickman Counties. As of now, 212 customers have signed up for the service.

The meeting was held in Fulton and attended by Commissioners of the district Dewey Johnson, Jack Austin, Elmer Hixon, David Dean and Arlie Batts, together with attorney John Bonduant and Raymond Hufft, Nashville, who heads the engineering firm in charge of the project.

Financing is contemplated with an EDA loan of $170,000 at 4½%, a grant-in-aid of $455,000, and area participation of $25,000, the latter already subscribed through advance collection of meter fees. According to Hufft, the legal application has been made, the engineering report to the Kentucky Public Service Commission submitted, and a hearing expected in a matter of weeks by the KPSC. "With KPSC approval, the final step is a review of data by the EDA," Hufft stated at the meeting.

Hufft estimated that actual construction could begin in mid-January if everything continues on schedule.

City National Bank Reaches Milestone: Ten Million In Assets

The City National Bank of Fulton reached a milestone in local banking circles this week: over $10 million dollars in assets.

The ten-million dollar figure climaxes a long period of steady growth that the bank has enjoyed since its founding way back in 1897... some 72 years ago.

Current deposits are the highest ever enjoyed by City National... and the highest ever reached in Fulton banking circles.

Guided by only five Presidents in its long 72-year old history, the City National Bank was organized in October 1897 as the Citizens Bank with Smith Fields as President. The bank was capitalized at $12,500, and the following year doubled its capital stock. The institution continued to grow as a State bank until March 15, 1902, having in that time paid its stockholders dividends amounting to 75% per annum. It was then changed to a national bank, and the name was also changed to City National Bank.

Succeeding presidents include W. W. Morris, N. G. Cooke, Clyde Williams, Sr., and its current president, L. M. McBride.

In 1906 the Bank purchased and remodeled its present building site with "elegant fixtures", which it retained until it was again completely remodeled as it looks today. The most recent remodeling also included purchase of a large parking lot behind the bank and installation of three television drive-in stalls which are in daily operation during banking hours today.

According to an old newspaper account of the Bank published in 1911, deposits at that time were $322,653.10. At that time, W. W. Morris was President, W. C. Croft, Vice-President, C. E. Rice, cashier and N. G. Cooke assistant cashier. Directors in 1911 included Joe Browder, J. C. Brann, W. W. Brady, L. T. Browder, W. C. Croft, J. W. Thomas, C. E. Rice, W. A. Terry, Dr. George F. Weeks and W. W. Morris.

The City National Bank now has the following officers:

L. M. McBride, President; Kenneth E. Crews, Vice-President; John Daniel, Cashier; Mrs. Bonnie Asbell, Asst. Cashier.

Directors include:

L. H. Weeks, J. D. Davis, C. P. Williams, Jr., Parks Weeks, Ward Bushart, L. M. McBride, Arch Huddleston,

A Vocational Training School Is In Sight For Fulton, Hickman Counties; Let's Get It!

For more years than we can remember, we have heard volumes of discussion about the great need in this area, and particularly in Fulton County, for a vocational training school.

Rarely did the discussions go beyond the hopeful stage, although we have learned recently that an application has been made, through proper channels, for the establishment of a vocational training school in Fulton County.

Having noted this month that Kentucky was awarded a big chunk of Federal funds to establish various vocational training programs in the State, we decided to do some research on the matter.

We were well rewarded Tuesday in a refreshing conversation with Harold Garrison, superintendent of the Fulton County Schools. As is required by law, a city or county school system must make application for the vocational training program and Mr. Garrison has applied for the project through the Fulton County School system.

While much progress has been made toward obtaining a vocational training school for this area (to perhaps serve Fulton and Hickman counties) there is much more work to be done; but of greater importance than solving the mechanics of securing the training center, Mr. Garrison needs the solid support of educators, business, professional and industrial leaders.

This newspaper has done research of its own to secure a vocational training center. In that connection we learned that the greatest requirement of local participation is to furnish or make available a building in which to house the training school. After that hurdle is overcome, State and Federal programs supply the funds for equipment, maintenance and professional personnel to staff the school. Moreover, the same funds are available for one-half of the construction cost of the building.

We believe, as does Mr. Garrison, that evidence of local support for the program will go a long way towards making this vocational training center a reality. Surely, prevailing statistics are on the side of the necessity for a vocational training center.

Did you know that Fulton County has one of the highest school drop-out rates of any county in Kentucky? Did you know that presently the Fulton County School system has more than 100 adults enrolled in night classes learning such vitally needed skills as welders, small engine mechanics, electricians, bookkeepers, typists and blue-print readers?

The Fulton County project is being maintained under the auspices of the Paducah-Tilghman Area Technical School, as an extension program of that school.

Mr. Garrison tells us that our application would be much further along the path to successful processing were it not for the fact that a study is now being made to determine whether such vocational training programs, as hoped for in Fulton County, would be much better if the schools operated autonomously, rather than as an extension of a larger facility.

The decision should be forthcoming at an early date. Meanwhile on the home front, all of us in Fulton and Hickman counties must throw our support to Mr. Garrison to attain this asset for our area.

It's time we think, even long past due, for concerned leaders in these far western Kentucky counties to see that governmental programs of assistance come our way. Too many times of recent date they have eluded us, not because we do not need them, but because we have not presented a united front of cooperation in delineating our needs.

The lack of a vocational training school in this area, which results in a desperate lack of skilled labor, accounts for our ever diminishing population figures. Our young people, even our adults, are forced to seek those greener pastures where job training and employment is available.

In the same view, it can be said without fear of contradiction, that industries continue to pass us by because of a lack of skilled labor to staff these prospective industries.

In asking for your support of Mr. Garrison's application to establish a vocational training school in this area we point out the bonanza of funds that were allocated on November 12 for various projects in these Kentucky counties:

— $50,975 for a 35-week course for 18 welder trainees from Bowling Green at the Bowling Green Vocational School.

— $30,111 for a 28-week course for 20 clerk-typist trainees from Covington at the Northern Kentucky Vocational School.

— $47,538 for a 34-week course for 20 clerk-stenographer trainees from Frankfort at the Central Kentucky Vocational School.

— $59,674 for a 41-week course for 18 diesel mechanic trainees from Hazard at the Hazard Vocational School.

— $37,728 for a 34-week course for 20 clerk-stenographer trainees from Henderson at the Owensboro Area Vocational School.

— $50,720 for a 40-week course for 18 automobile mechanic trainees from Mayfield at the Tilghman Vocation School.

— $46,927 for a 34-week course for 18 welder trainees from Pikeville at the Mayo Vocational School Extension Center.

— $38,236 for a 34-week course for 20 clerk-stenographer trainees from Owensboro at the Owensboro Vocational School.

— $51,768 for a 34-week course for 18 welder trainees from Prestonsburg at the Mayo Area Vocational School.

— $52,125 for a 34-week course for 20 clerk-stenographer trainees from Winchester at the Central Kentucky Vocational School.

A PRAYER

Lord, let me live like a regular man,
With regular friends and true;
Let me play the game on a regular plan
And play it that way all through;
Let me win or lose with a regular smile
And never be known to whine,
For that is a regular fellow's style
And I want to make it mine!

Oh, give me a regular chance in life,
The same as the rest, I pray,
And give me a regular girl for wife
To help me along the way;
Let us know the lot of humanity,
Its regular woes and joys,
And raise a regular family
Of regular girls and boys!

Let me live to a regular, good old age,
With regular snow-white hair,
Having done my labor and earned my wage
And played my game for fair;
And so at last when the people scan
My face in its peaceful bier,
They'll say, "Well, he was a regular man!"
And drop a regular tear!

ADAM AND EVE, by Gwen-dolyn Reed. "In the beginning all was in darkness and the world was nothing but a watery waste." Thus opens this poetic retelling of the story of the creation and of man's discovery of good and evil as set forth in Genesis. Woodcuts in glowing color, by Helen Siegl, evoke the wonder of Eden, the first garden. The great stories of the Bible such as this of Adam and Eve belong to all children, regardless of faith, and are loved by children everywhere.

JOE NAMATH, SUPERSTAR, by Robert B. Jackson. Joe Namath was an established star before he ever put his famous white shoes on a professional football field. In high school he excelled at baseball and basketball as well as football, and at the University of Alabama he was quarterback of three highly rated Crimson Tide football teams. Alabama coach "Bear" Bryant called him the best athlete he had ever seen. Mr. Jackson tells the story of the fine young Boston Red Sox outfielder from his Long Island boyhood, through the disappointing years of the early 1960's. THE CHAMPION OF OLYMPIA, by Renee Guillot. The man facing Donar with the whip had real hatred for this strong, blond Galatin boy who had been shipwrecked and captured by a merchant vessel bound for Corinth. Donar's enemy could not know that he was a prince in his own land. Donar's anger and courage kept him alive now and during the months of bondage that followed his sale in the Corinthian slave market to a wealthy merchant.

THEY NEVER CAME HOME, by Lois Duncan. Two boys fail to return from a weekend camping trip in the mountains. Why aren't they found? Why is there no trace even of their equipment? And who is the man who demands $2000 owed him from a "business" deal by one of the boys? The disappearance creates a major upheaval in the boys' families. A sister post-pones college to work off her brother's debt at a job she thinks is somehow illegal. A boy emerges from his brother's shadow to find a valid identity for himself. For one mother it means a nervous breakdown.

THE CRUISE OF THE HAPPY-GO-GAY, by Ursula Moray Williams. "It is a tragedy for nieces to be bored," wrote Aunt Hegarty. "Send them to stay with me, bringing warm underclothes designed for danger." To five nieces whose brothers had all the fun, an invitation from an intrepid explorer like Aunt Hegarty, not only to choose their own adventures but to sail away in search of them, was more than exciting—it was even a little frightening.

CUSTER, MAN AND LEGEND, by William Hewman. George Armstrong Custer, the man, and George Armstrong Custer, the legend, are intertwined. It is difficult to say where the one ends and the other begins. A highly controversial and dashing figure, the "General" has intrigued writers and readers since the fatal day of June 25, 1876, when he led his troops into the valley of the Little Big Horn.

WHAT DO YOU WANT TO KNOW? by Coralle Howard. Who was king when . . . ? What is the meaning of . . . ? I wonder what would happen if . . . ? How to look for answers to such questions is discussed by Coralle Howard, with an eye to encouraging young readers to enjoy their curiosity. Ways to use and develop five learning tools—observation, reason, authority, experiment and imagination—are suggested and demonstrated.

DO NOT ANNOY THE INDIANS, by Betty Baker. When the Butterfield Overland Mail Company started in 1858, Mr. Butterfield issued a list of rules to his employees, among them: "Do not annoy the Indians. All employees will be at their posts at all times. Suitable meals must be prepared for passengers." To thirteen-year-old Jeff Barnes, newly arrived in frontier Arizona, the rules seemed reasonable—until he realized he would have to be the one to carry them out.

FIERCE JOHN, by Edward Fenton. Never has the game of pretend been more engagingly portrayed than in this enchanting picture book by an author and artist who have combined their special gifts of imagination and humor to create a captivating small boy—or should we say lion?

Dear Editor:

Poor people in Kentucky are seeking substantial representation on the State's Programs which affect their lives. Since the poor make up 1/3 of Kentucky's population, their voice, if united, will have to be heard. Last May, the poor of Kentucky for the first time in history banded together to make their voices heard. A group of representative poor presented Governor Nunn and the Governors attending the National Republic Governors' Conference, a mule named "Hope" . . . a symbol of the desire of poor people to continue to participate in the decisions and activities of government which affect our lives. From this first encounter, the poor have learned the value of uniting in order to be heard effectively. Today, this original group has expanded to include many thousands of poor in the State of Kentucky and have adopted the name of KENTUCKY POOR PEOPLE'S COALITION.

This group will hold their first annual convention in Lexington, Kentucky on November 22, 1969. At this convention, officers will be elected and resolutions concerning the Welfare of the poor will be proposed and voted upon. There will also be a meal. The cost per person for this meal shall be based upon the amount allowed for each person per meal to a family receiving public assistance, (approximately 25¢). A nationally known supporter of the poor will be guest speaker at this convention.

Mrs. Ellen Wigginton, resident of Lexington, who is acting Chairman of the Coalition stated, "The plight of the poor in Kentucky is a matter of national concern. Interest in our venture has already been expressed from many parts of the country. People are waiting to see if we succeed or fail. If the Coalition is successful in Kentucky, it will ensure the voice of the poor throughout America." The convention is open to all concerned Kentuckians. Registration is at 11 a.m. November 22, at Dunbar Junior High School in Lexington.

Mrs. Ellen Wigginton

(Ed's note: Scarcely anybody believes in freedom of assembly more than we do. We think that in unity there is strength.)

(But this meeting of the Kentucky Poor People's Coalition bugs us more than a little bit.)

(Knowing the high cost of attending out-of-town meetings we are at a loss to understand how "the poor" can afford to go to a convention in Louisville, with delegates attending from all over the State of Kentucky.)

(We publish this letter to see if you see what we see in this "convention" idea . . . somebody else exploiting "the poor.")

MONEY MANAGEMENT

We have heard a lot about inflation, how the dollar has shrunk in purchasing power. But have we really been concerned about how to stretch that shrinking dollar? Many families would get more happiness and far less worry from their money if they would do a little more planning and then budget the use of their money more carefully. Budgeting does not mean setting up a complicated bookkeeping system or to keep account of every penny. It is merely planning wise use of the family's money for the benefit of all concerned. — Miss Irma Hamilton, Courthouse, Mayfield, Ky. 42066. Telephone: 247-2334.

B&PW National President In Vietnam Group

Mrs. Myra Ruth Harmon, President of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., was among 27 top-level national organization heads who visited Vietnam on November 4-9 at the invitation of President Nguyen Van Thieu to study ways for Vietnam to start volunteer groups to help improve the country's living standards. Accompanying her on the tour was Mrs. Lucille H. Shriver, Foundation director.

The trip opened and closed with a meeting with President Thieu and various Vietnamese government and volunteer leaders. Also on the itinerary were visits to areas in Vietnam where volunteer groups were particularly needed.

The Federation was included among the invited guests because of its fifty-year history of work in elevating standards, improving conditions, and providing educational opportunities for working women. In accepting the invitation, Mrs. Harmon said, "The Federation is extremely proud to be included in this prestigious group of organizational leaders. Throughout our history we have found that personal contact and observation lead to human understanding. We look upon the Vietnam tour as an exciting way to learn about the country. But more than that, we look upon it as a challenging opportunity to contribute something of ourselves and our experience to those people."

The trip was arranged through Dr. Kenneth D. Wells, President of the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. Mrs. Harmon and Mrs. Shriver met with the other tour participants for a briefing session by the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific, Admiral John McCain, Jr., in Honolulu, Hawaii, on Saturday, November 1. They were headquartered in Saigon during their Vietnam stay, and returned to Honolulu on Sunday, November 9.

Would a console and mirror be just the right thing for your hall? Consoles are usually placed from 33 to 36 inches from the floor for the convenience of the person standing. The mirror should be of a generous size. One that will reflect the head and shoulders of the viewer. The mirror is usually hung so the head of the viewer is seen at the top of the mirror. — Mrs. Mildred W. Potts, La Center, Kentucky 42056. Telephone: 665-5671.

Staining Concrete—Concrete porches, patios, driveways and foundations no longer need to have the grey, unfinished look, neither do they have to peel continually from repeated painting. Stains are now available for porous concrete surfaces. They can be applied on any clean, cured concrete area with a long-handled roller, a brush, spray or even a pushbroom. Because they penetrate deep into the porous surface, the color is not so vivid, consequently, it does not show footprints, dust, nor wear as badly as paints. — Mrs. Juanita Amoneit, Courthouse, Paducah, Ky. 42001. Telephone: 442-2718.

An electric vertical broiler that operates in the same way as a toaster is being introduced. The broiler's two heating elements broil both sides of the meat simultaneously, and the broiler rack is self-adjusting, thus allowing easy broiling of thick or thin meats. The broiling process is clean and smokeless as any grease drips to a pan at the bottom, far away from the heating unit. — Mrs. Barletta Wraether, 209 Maple Street, Murray, Ky. 42071. Telephone: 753-1452.

Try freezing sandwiches in advance for packed lunches. Spread bread slices with butter to help avoid soggy sandwiches. Mayonnaise will separate when frozen; salad dressings do not. Store time for frozen sandwiches is two to four weeks. Allow 3 to 3 1/2 hours for thawing at room temperature or in lunchboxes. — Miss Pat Everett, Courthouse, Benton, Kentucky 42025. Telephone: 527-6601.

Dumb Blond Is Gone For Good; At Least That's A Woman's View

The dumb blond is gone for good, as far as the chairman of Kentucky's Commission on Women is concerned—and good evidence points to the fact that she must convince the young girl that her role and her intelligence are important. The social ills she speaks of range all the way from juvenile delinquency to the problems of old age.

"Juvenile delinquents are not born," she says by way of illustration, "they get that way because of the way they are brought up. And in too many cases, the fault lies primarily with the mother."

She says, "That is because in the complex world of 1969 we still tend to minimize the importance of marriage, and the qualifications the woman brings to the marriage."

"We are—by our silence—still telling the young girls that they can be as stupid as they that counts most. "The greatest need that women have is the need for a good self-concept. The fact that too few women have that concept is a legacy of the ancient and medieval days when women were adjudged, even by themselves, to be unfit to take part in the activities that were strictly the bailiwick of men—religion and the arts, for instance," Mrs. Humphries says.

Yet formal education, she says, does not play the key role in the solution to the problem. It is the lesson learned by the young girl at her mother's knee

Dear Ann Landers.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 31 years old, married and have two children. Three months ago I took a job as a doctor's office assistant. Although I was engaged to handle the phone and do book work, I was trained to fill in for the nurse when she is occupied or absent.

Saturday, a 19-year-old boy came in for a physical. I showed him to the examination room and asked him to undress to the waist. Evidently he misunderstood. When I returned a few minutes later, he was completely nude. My first impulse was to tell him to put on his shorts, but for some reason I didn't. I went ahead and weighed and measured him, took his temperature and blood pressure.

He was somewhat embarrassed, but I enjoyed the situation immensely. The feelings I experienced were indecent and I am ashamed of myself. Now, the worst—several times this week I have caught myself daydreaming and hoping other young men would misunderstand the instructions.

I am happily married and can't understand what has come over me. Has something gone wrong with my mind? I am upset over this whole thing and any help you can give me would be deeply appreciated. — Hartford

Dear Hart: Everyone has fantasies and apparently you are having some delayed adolescent duties. Accept them as such and stop feeling guilty. R. L. Stevenson once said, "We all have thoughts and desires that would shame hell." No truer words were ever spoken.

Dear Ann Landers: Mr. K. was new in town. He presented himself to me and to my family as a well-to-do contractor. He drove a '69 Olds, wore custom-tailored suits, and had a different pair of cufflinks for every day of the week.

After a whirlwind courtship of 39 days, I married him. Now, four months later, it turns out that he left Toledo owing everybody. I have seen letters from collection agencies, lawyers, angry merchants and former colleagues from whom he borrowed money. I am afraid to answer the phone because he has run up overdue bills in local shops.

Our marriage is heading for the rocks because all we do is argue about money. I do not respect a man who has a bad reputation and no integrity. I am also afraid that I might be held responsible for his debts. Is misrepresentation of financial status grounds for divorce? Please advise me. — Castles Crumbled

Dear Cas: See an attorney. The laws vary from state to state. In some states, misrepresentation is grounds for annulment. And let this be a lesson to all the dolls out I do? — Beebe

Dear Beebe: Yes, he's crazy, external trappings and go and if you don't know what to husband hunting with a Gelger-counter.

Dear Ann Landers: I went with this man for years. When I say "went with" I mean night and day, seven days a week. Whenever I mentioned marriage, he put me off. One day he told me he was not feeling well and his doctor suggested a change of scenery. "So," he said, "I found another girl."

He married the tramp within 10 days and I cried myself into a state of collapse. Two months later he phoned and said he wanted me to be his Syndicate

BIGGEST FOOT IN THE OVC—Stan Watts of Murray State University, who kicked a record-shattering Ohio Valley Conference field goal of 52 yards against Austin Peay Nov. 8, tightens the laces on the special, square-toed, size 11 shoe he has used to kick himself into the record loop.

Stan Watts, Top Kick Of Cayce Family, Sets Football Record

MURRAY, Ky. — Rangy Stan Watts can't kick about the success he has had on the football field at Murray State University.

Otherwise, he can kick! And how!

The 18-year-old sophomore place-kicking specialist from Cayce in Fulton County set an all-time Ohio Valley Conference record last Saturday against Austin Peay State University when he boomed a field goal through the uprights from 52 yards away.

An intelligent, dark-haired young man who stands 6-3 and weighs 190 pounds, Watts admits with a shy grin he knew he was kicking for a conference distance record when he lined up from the Governors' 42-yard line.

"I knew it was on line all the way," he recalls, "but I wasn't sure it was far enough until I saw the official's hands go up. It has to be my biggest thrill."

But Watts is not exactly revealing a deep, dark secret. About 5,000 fans in Cutchin Stadium at Murray could readily see the pleasure he took in eclipsing the old mark by a yard. He leaped high into the air and dashed to the bench to expose himself to the back-pounding congratulations of his teammates.

His record-shattering effort against Austin Peay is not the only mark he has fractured with his special, square-toed, size 11 right shoe, however.

He now owns three Thoroughbred kicking records — two field goals in one game, four for a season, and seven for a career. He has connected on seven field goals in 11 attempts during his two years at Murray State, four of them coming from 40 yards or longer.

Watts, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Watts and a graduate of Fulton County High School, scored 31 points last year on three field goals and 22 extra points. He already has 30 this year on four field goals and 18 extra points and ranks second in scoring among kickers in the OVC.

Besides the 52-yarder that bested a 1966 record shared by John Swords of Tennessee Tech and Ronnie Parsons of Austin Peay, Watts is moving in on other conference records.

His next field goal — and he has two games left this season — will tie him with Parsons for the one-year OVC standard of five field goals. He needs only five more while at Murray State to surpass the OVC career record of 11 held by Parsons.

Adverse circumstances with injuries and the influence of an older brother who had been a kicker were the factors that launched Watts on his kicking career.

After a dislocated hip stymied him during his freshman year of football at Fulton County, he broke his arm during spring practice before his sophomore year.

Admitting "discouragement," he decided not to play as a sophomore.

"I went home and worked all year on my kicking. Then I played offensive end as a junior and senior and did the place-kicking and punting," Watts says.

Reference to his punting brought another grin to Watts' face and he quickly explained he assumed those duties "because there wasn't anybody else."

Watts never attempted a field goal during high school and kicked only a few extra points because his team "had a lot of them blocked."

Kicking protection is much better at Murray, however, and he is gradually developing more leg power for distance. Both are factors that portend the downfall of more Racer opponents and kicking records before Watts' career at Murray State has ended.

ROUTE THREE

Mrs. Aline Williams

Mrs. Marvin Cowell of Madisonville, Ky., spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Hale Williams.

Ronald Mack Coffman has been in the hospital the past week with arthritis.

Last Thursday night Mr. and Mrs. Neal Hedge, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Mydett, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Terrell, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Winstead, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Winstead and son, Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Adair Cannon, Mrs. Mary Cavender and Mrs. Aline Williams met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cannon for most of the ladies to work on a quilt they are making for Elder and Mrs. Arlie Larimer, the pastor of Old Bethel Church. After the work was finished, Mrs. Cannon served refreshment to everyone and it was an enjoyable evening of working and visiting together.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cannon were in Memphis the first of this week visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Larry Cannon and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Gavrock.

Last week was a busy week for us at the Dollar General Store with new merchandise coming in three days to be put out. I helped four days there and Mrs. Maurine Vaughn helped Mrs. Cummings two days.

Part of a combine fell on Billy Parrish last Friday and crushed him from the hips down. I understood he was working on it and a cable broke. His brother, Dr. Tom Parrish of Nashville, Tenn., came down to be with him. We hope for Billy a speedy recovery.

Our daughter, Kara Lewis, got a telephone call at 4 o'clock Saturday morning from her husband, Carl Lewis. He was on his way home from Calif. and was in Texas. He asked her to meet him in Memphis in four and one-half hours.

It's needless to say she went. Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis, his dad and mother, went with her to meet him. He only had a four-day stay but we all sure did enjoy having him home. Those going to visit with him at the home of his dad and mother Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Workman, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Workman and son and Herbert Puckett of Lynnville, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. Ross Williams of Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Johnie Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Williams.

My husband Everett and I spent last Monday and Tuesday nights with his sister, Mrs. Claud McNeill, and Mr. McNeill. We were asked to leave home for 24 hours while the Texas Pipeline folk water-tested the gas lines by our house.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Ross are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burrett Ross in Ruthville and attended church at Old Bethel Sunday.

South Fulton FHA Chapter Plans Work

In October, the South Fulton Chapter of Future Homemakers of America met for our second meeting which was called to order by President Edie Maynard. The secretary read last month's minutes and had the roll call. Then Edie discussed Thanksgiving baskets and Freshman initiation. She then turned the meeting over to Vice-President Deborah Hodges.

Deborah's program consisted of eleven freshmen and sophomore girls participating in an act "Being an Individual." Each girl had a different hat representing eleven different individual personalities. They emphasized the importance of individuality in making any club or organization successful.

Next on the program was "Radio Jumble," a play which everyone seemed to enjoy very much.

After refreshments of punch and cookies, Deborah Hodges led us all in the relaxer "That's Me."

The songleader, Lisa Watts, led us in several songs, and the meeting was adjourned.

WE GATHER TOGETHER

We all went to church this morning. Later, as I carved the turkey, Mary and I began to reminisce about our first Thanksgiving in our own home.

It was the year Joe was a baby. Always before, we'd gone home to our families. We set a festive table and pretended not to be lonely.

"And were you?" asked Jane.

"Did you pray before you ate?" asked Ruthie.

"Of course, they prayed," said Joe importantly. After all, he'd been there! "That's what Thanksgiving is all about!"

Mary and I smiled at each other, remembering how we'd nearly forgotten. We'd bowed our heads together, baby son at our side. Suddenly, the real meaning of Thanksgiving swept over us, and we gave thanks for the blessings of the hour.

How grateful we are for the teachings of our church, which through the years has helped us interpret the source of all goodness!

Art Guild Hears Edgy At Meeting

The Fulton-South Fulton Art Guild held its monthly meeting in the Fulton Woman's Club Monday night, November 17. A most entertaining and interesting program was presented by James Edgy, assistant director of the Kentucky Arts Commission.

Colored slides of Monet paintings and recorded music of Debussy were used to illustrate the two artists' impressions of light upon any selected subject. This comparison was based upon the thesis Edgy wrote for his master's degree at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn. Edgy told the receptive audience that he was probably the only person in the world who had received his master's degree in English by using Art and Music for a thesis.

Mr. Edgy explained this art form and the first reactions of the public as follows: When Monet first exhibited his impressionist paintings, there was a much louder clamor from the art world than has arisen from any new form of art since that day.

"The same debate over the value of impressionist work arose when Debussy's concerts were first heard. Most of the music before this left the listener with a definite melody to hum when he left the theater, but without an extremely sensitive ear for music construction the audience could not really describe the music of Debussy," Edgy stated.

To illustrate the similarity expressed by the two artists, Edgy used ten slides of the beautiful Cathedral paintings of Monet and the recording "Le Cathedral Englottie" of Debussy.

Nunn Names Three To Hickman Posts

Dr. Richard H. White, R. B. Golder, Jr. and Joe Myatt have been appointed by Governor Nunn to fill vacant spots on Hickman's newly-created city commission.

The vacancies were caused by the failure of five city candidates for the posts to secure sufficient names to their qualifying petitions in the recent election. One candidate, Brodie Creed, did secure enough signatures and was elected without opposition to a four-year term. The three appointees will take office January 1st and will serve until next November.

NOTEBOOK—

Not After Dark

Mary Nelle Wright tells a good story about her recent visit to Memphis to attend the Conference of the Tennessee Arts Commission. Going to the Ellis Auditorium to attend a presentation of the opera, she and Mrs. Ralph Hornbeak of Union City hailed a cab from the Peabody Hotel.

Realizing that they would be late getting away from the Auditorium they asked the cab driver to come back for them, and even made mention of a right generous tip for his trouble. They never dreamed they would hear what they did when the seasoned, mature driver said:

"No mam ladies, I can't come back for you. I just don't want to be on the streets of Memphis when the crowds thin out late at night. It's dangerous."

The gals got back to the hotel all right, but not without some traumatic thoughts about the whole thing.

The Vanderford Accident

An entire community was saddened last week when F. M. Vanderford, a popular and likeable local undertaker, was critically injured in an automobile accident on the Martin Highway.

Through the courtesy of the Weakley County Press at Martin we were able to publish a photograph of Vanderford's (everybody calls him by his last name) completely demolished vehicle, cut in two by the impact of the accident.

Today Vanderford remains unconscious at the Veteran's Hospital in Memphis. We venture to say that if sincere interest in his welfare could be transmitted to recovery, this highly intelligent and well informed citizen would be up and about in no time at all.

Ever since the news of his accident was published in this paper last week, we have been deluged with requests for copies of the paper. This isn't unusual when a prominent person meets with sadness or tragedy, but what is out of the ordinary is that almost every person has bought four to a dozen copies of the paper with each purchase.

When asked why so many people were buying so many copies a customer said: "People all over the country know and respect Vanderford and we just want them to know that he's in trouble and they'll surely want to help."

As far as I am concerned I believe that I enjoy conversation with Vanderford as much as any person I know, in any walk of life.

It is for that reason that my family and I join his legion of friends in wishing for him a speedy recovery.

Evelyn Dixon Going To Ecuador

Last week Evelyn Dixon, secretary at the Banana Festival office, was chosen to accompany International Banana Festival Princess Debbie Sue May to Quito for the annual Festival in that Ecuadorian city.

The gals have some real excitement in store for them. They plan to leave about the middle of next week and return around December 6.

Too bad only one person can serve as chaperone, because some other gals considered to make the trip were Ruth Laird, Linda Arrington, Mildred Freeman Lorene Harding and even this reporter.

Hasta la vista.

Wendell Ford Is March Of Dimes Leader

Americans should be permissive with their children but make sure it's where it counts, according to Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford.

Ford, Kentucky chairman for the March of Dimes campaign this year, has appealed to Americans to be permissive "where it will help."

"Let's permit a child to crawl, to stand, to walk, and, if God pleases, to run," is his plea. Speaking to a three-state meeting of March of Dimes volunteers recently in Cincinnati, Ford contended that "America, as a nation, and as a society, can do better."

The lieutenant governor cited "the disturbing fact . . . that each year in America, more than 90,000 children die without reaching their first birthday, half of them with serious birth defects."

Ford praised volunteer workers for their part in helping battle birth defects and polio, and in supporting child-health research by the Salk Institute and others. He listed three ways volunteers help:

1.—They help society care for its members. "Developing and protecting the health of our children is a proper obligation for a society which cares . . . in the United States, every two minutes, a child is born with one or more physical or mental defects."

2.—They help the individual who gives. "Your efforts create a sort of mutual fund by which each donor's investment in goodness spreads among many lives and returns a dividend of satisfaction to the giver."

3.—They help the children who need a chance to meet life on even terms. "Our first duty to little children is to make them well and happy."

"By your efforts, you help our society support the necessary research and work of prevention and treatment."

"In the name of a child, I ask you to give all the service you can, in all the way you can, to all the children you can, in every place that you can, in all the time you can, with all the zeal you can, as long as ever you can," Ford concluded.

Applicants must be United States Citizens, high school graduates and at least 16 years of age. No previous experience is required. Applicants are expected to be of satisfactory character and reputation and are subject to investigation. Anyone interested in applying should write to the FBI, P. O. Reduced Draft Calls Forecast By Laird

WASHINGTON — Secretary Roger T. Kelley, said he doubts the lottery could take effect before Feb. 1.

The Senate committee has already given informal approval to the House-passed lottery proposal, and the Senate is likely to complete congressional action next week.

After hearing Laird, the committee formally approved the House-passed lottery bill by a unanimous vote.

Laird said current manpower projections indicate a maximum of 250,000 men will be drafted in 1970, compared with 290,000 this year. In all, some 850,000 would be in the draft pool next year, he said.

Since these projections only take into account troop withdrawals from Vietnam already announced, further pullouts could reduce requirements and make possible further draft reductions, the secretary indicated.

Before the year starts, all of the dates in the year would be picked at random that would apply to 19-year-olds and to those Laird referred to as "constructive 19-year-olds," persons whose college deferments expired during the year.

State's Plan For Vocational Education Wins Approval

FRANKFORT, Ky.

Kentucky's state plan for vocational education has been approved by Washington, Supt. of Public Instruction Wendell Butler announced Friday.

Approval of the plan, retroactive to last July 1, makes Kentucky eligible for a share of $131.5 million in federal money for vocational programs in all the states.

The state Board of Education at its Oct. 16 meeting accepted changes in its previously approved plan to correct 46 "deficiencies" specified by federal vocational education officials.

The 314-page state plan was written without specific mention of whether the state's 37 vocational education extension centers would remain under state control or be turned over to local school districts.

The state Board of Education and the Advisory Council on Vocational Education — a group appointed by Gov. Louie B. Nunn this year in accordance with the federal law — have been at odds on that issue.

The state Board of Education has voted to turn the extension centers over to local school districts by June 30, 1970. But then, faced with the opposition of the advisory council, the state board decided to make no changes before Dec. 1 this year.

That delay was made to await separate studies on the issue by both Butler and the advisory council. In opposing turning the extension centers over to local school boards, the council argued that many smaller districts could not afford to operate the centers adequately.

Included in the plan approved by Washington was an organizational chart showing a regional approach to vocational education, a concept which has been challenged by some board members.

Those members said the regional approach would perpetuate two separate school systems — one for vocational training and another for regular schools. That was a major argument used for turning the vocational extension centers over to the local school boards instead of keeping them directly under the state Education Department.

But the regional supervisors set out in the state plan were meant primarily to apply to the 12 area vocational education schools, which would remain under the department in any case.

MSU Is Site For Preliminary To Miss Kentucky Pageant

MURRAY, Ky.—Murray State University, for the first time in history, will have a chance in 1970 at the coveted Miss America title.

A pageant of competition scheduled on the campus Dec. 1-6 has been sanctioned as an official preliminary to the Miss America Pageant. The Murray State winner will compete in the Miss Kentucky Pageant next spring.

Co-sponsored by the Shield, the university yearbook, and the student government organization, the pageant will emphasize talent in the search for a coed to represent the school.

Judging will be done by a five-member panel from the Western Kentucky area—with 50 per cent of the total points based on talent and 25 per cent each on evening gown and swimsuit competition.

Rick Parker, a Murray senior who is serving as pageant chairman, said the deadline for entries in the pageant is Nov. 10. Any Murray State coed who meets contest requirements is eligible to compete.

Selection of "Miss Murray

State" by pageant is a departure from the routine in past years faculty advisors involved in when a campus election has de-cided which coed would wear week's activities.

Admission to the Murray State Parker said a "colorful and exciting" pageant is being plan- and $1.50 for adults.
